About the course

This course is for users of the M4 TORNADO. Participants will receive 3 days of training on the fundamentals of micro-XRF, in-depth software training, preventative maintenance, sample preparation, layer analysis, and applications. This course is designed for intermediate and advanced users. It is a hands-on training and intended to provide practical use of the equipment. The training will be performed with recent versions of Esprit and XMethod software programs.

Because each class will be tailored to the individual registrants' applications, participants are encouraged to contact the course instructor in advance for more information or to convey specific requests on applications to be covered. Participants are encouraged to bring in samples or example data with them. The training is in English, so participants should have strong English skills.

Monday-Wednesday, 9am-4:30pm & Thursday, 9am-Noon*

Last hour of class Monday-Wednesday will be devoted to answering questions and running samples.
